Stephen G. Larson, co-founder of Larson O'Brien LLP, is a former United States District Judge, and has been one of the nation's "go-to" trial lawyers for high-stakes civil and white-collar matters, since returning to private practice in 2009. Mr. Larson is also a trusted adviser to senior executives and prominent domestic and international businesses.

Mr. Larson has nearly 30 years of trial and appellate experience, and has been lead counsel in scores of jury trials in the federal and state courts and appeals, before the United States Supreme Court, the United States Court of Appeal for the Ninth Circuit, the California Supreme Court, and the California Court of Appeal. The Daily Journal has recognized Mr. Larson as one of the Top 100 lawyers in California for the past two consecutive years, noting achievements as lead trial counsel in his broad white collar and civil trial practice. Mr. Larson currently serves as the chair of the Los Angeles County Blue Ribbon Commission on Public Safety.

Mr. Larson's civil practice is broad, having represented individuals and public and private companies of all sizes as plaintiffs and defendants in high-stakes disputes, including intellectual property, real property and land use, complex contract issues, business torts, employment, securities, class actions, and environmental lawsuits. He regularly represents companies in the entertainment, technology, financial services, real estate, healthcare, and energy and natural resources industries. In addition, Mr. Larson is frequently engaged as an arbitrator and mediator in complex commercial disputes.

Mr. Larson's white collar criminal defense practice includes representing businesses in government investigations and prosecutions related to an array of issues, including public corruption, the Foreign Corrupt Practices Act ("FCPA"), domestic and international sanctions issues, the False Claims Act, healthcare laws, and financial controls. Mr. Larson also represents companies, executives, lawyers, doctors, and public figures at all stages of white collar criminal matters from investigations to trial. Mr. Larson's criminal defense practice includes conducting internal investigations for companies, public entities, boards, and committees.

In 2016, Mr. Larson was appointed by the Orange County District Attorney and the Orange County Board of Supervisors to monitor the District Attorney's compliance with a Blue Ribbon commission's recommendations related to jail informants.

In 2018, Mr. Larson was awarded The Daily Journal's California Lawyer Attorneys of the Year Award (CLAY) for his trial advocacy in The People of the State of California v. Paul Biane et al., which former California Attorney General Jerry Brown touted as one of the most significant public corruption matters in California history. After an eight month trial, Mr. Larson secured a complete defense verdict for developer Jeff Burum, defeating allegations that three county officials took bribes from Burum in exchange for their approval for a $102 million settlement of a land dispute.

Prior Experience

Prior to founding Larson O'Brien LLP, Mr. Larson was chair of the litigation department at a national law firm. As an Assistant United States Attorney in the Central District of California between 1991 and 2000, Mr. Larson served as the Chief of the Organized Crime and Racketeering Division. As a prosecutor, he led 24 criminal trials and received the U.S. Department of Justice Director's Award for Superior Performance from Attorney General Janet Reno. Mr. Larson also conducted joint training exercises and investigations with foreign law enforcement agencies in Russia, Kazakhstan, Estonia, Latvia, Poland, the Ukraine, and South Korea.

Mr. Larson departed the United States Attorney's Office in 2000 to serve as a Magistrate Judge in the Central District of California. In 2005, President George W. Bush nominated Mr. Larson to serve as a District Judge. As a federal judge, Mr. Larson adjudicated over a thousand cases and was designated seven times to serve on the Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals. Mr. Larson was also a member of the Ninth Circuit's Jury Instruction Committee responsible for drafting and publishing model jury instructions. Mr. Larson was a founding member of the State Department's Public-Private Partnership for Justice Reform in Afghanistan.

As a judge, Mr. Larson presided over a number of high-profile cases, including the "Barbie vs. Bratz" copyright infringement dispute between toymakers Mattel and Bratz and Siegel v. Warner Bros. Entertainment, Inc., which determined the ownership of the copyrights to the iconic comic strip Superman. Mr. Larson also presided in United States v. Nazario, a landmark Military Extraterritorial Jurisdiction Act case involving U.S. Marines accused of manslaughter during the Battle of Fallujah; United States v. Duro, in which he blocked the U.S. Bureau of Indian Affairs' decade long effort to close down and expel a major migrant worker camp on the Torres Martinez Indian Reservation; and John Doe v. County of San Bernardino, which resulted in systematic reform of educational and therapeutic services for disabled youths within the county juvenile hall system.

Mr. Larson received his law degree from the USC Gould School of Law, and is a graduate of Georgetown University's School of Foreign Service. Throughout his career, he has taught law school classes in constitutional law, civil rights law, and federal courts, and has conducted law enforcement training at the FBI National Academy at Quantico and overseas on money laundering, asset forfeiture, and U.S. banking regulations.
